

Week in Review—Autonomous Roundup

Wednesday, January 15, 2020

Jim Chapman, Chair
Autonomous and Unmanned Systems Group

This Week's Highlight

Our favorite report this week shows us how Hyundai and Uber are teaming up to develop a line of flying taxis, which aims to expand Uber's planned aerial ridehailing service, Uber Elevate!

The Marines Are Looking For Robotic Crabs

USMC is developing a small unmanned robot designed to crawl from ships ashore to clear a path through deadly minefields.

Click here to read.

Robots take health toll on human workers

Working side-by-side with robots isn't easy. They are creating new forms of stress and strain in the form of injuries and uneasiness. Will it lead to more workers compensation claims?

Click here to read.

Drones Need Huge Tracking Network for Expanded Flights, FAA Says

New rules call for a massive tracking network for everything from toys to commercial drones so that law enforcement can spot the devices flying anywhere.

Click here to read.

WE PROVIDE MORE THAN SOUND LEGAL ADVICE. WE PROVIDE SOLUTIONS.

CWM
CRENSHAW, WARE & MARTIN, PLC

Helping our clients stay ahead of the rapidly changing legal, risk and regulatory climate surrounding un-manned and autonomous systems.