

Week in Review—Autonomous Roundup

Thursday, March 19, 2020

James Chapman, Chair
Autonomous and Unmanned Systems Group

This Week's Highlight

Our favorite report this week shows us how drones can produce some astounding aerial photos that can pass for amazing abstract art!

How this Virginia Beach Startup Aims to Be the World's Largest Provider of Drone Operations

Tom Walker started DroneUp aimed to create the go-to platform for companies to find pilots for drones. Today, the company is one of the largest in the field of unmanned systems with more than 10,000 pilots globally.

Click here to read.

Robots And Drones Are Now Used To Fight COVID-19

Medtech companies are rolling out robots and drones to help fight the coronavirus and provide services and care to those quarantined or practicing social distancing.

Click here to read.

U.S. is preparing to ban foreign-made drones from government use

The Trump administration is preparing an executive order to ban federal departments and agencies from buying or using foreign-made drones, citing a risk to national security.

Click here to read.

WE PROVIDE MORE THAN SOUND LEGAL ADVICE. WE PROVIDE SOLUTIONS.

Helping our clients stay ahead of the rapidly changing legal, risk and regulatory climate surrounding unmanned and autonomous systems.